

Slagle Canvas Discussions – Grading

These discussions will be graded according to the following criteria:

A Discussion (90-100):

Distinguished/Outstanding Students earning an “A” for discussion activities have participated 3 times (including your initial post) or more times during the week, and have posted outstanding information. “A” discussion postings:

- are made in time for others to read and respond
- deliver information that is full of thought, insight, and analysis; making connections to previous or current content, or to real-life situations (citations and reference!)
- contain rich and fully developed new ideas, connections, or applications

B Discussion (80-89):

Proficient Students earning a “B” for discussion activities have participated at least 2 times during the week and have posted proficient information. “B” discussion postings:

- are made in time for others to read and respond
- deliver information that shows that thought, insight, and analysis have taken place
- make connections to previous or current content or to real-life situations, but the connections are not really clear or are too obvious
- contain new ideas, connections, or applications, but they may lack depth and/or detail

C Discussion (70-79):

Basic Students earning a “C” for discussion activities have participated at least 1 time during the week and have posted basic information.

“C” discussion postings

- may not all be made in time for others to read and respond
- are generally competent, but the actual information they deliver seems thin and commonplace make limited, if any, connections, and those are often cast in the form of vague generalities
- contain few, if any, new ideas or applications; often are a rehashing or summary of other comments

D-F Discussion (10-69):

Below Expectations Students earning a “D-F” for discussion activities have participated at least 1 time during the week and have posted information that was below expectations.

“D-F” discussion postings:

- may not all be made in time for others to read and